About Halal Industry

Halal is an Arabic term meaning "permissible" or "lawful." The opposite of halal is haram, which means "prohibited" or "unlawful." These terms govern each aspect of Muslims' lives, including food, clothing, banking, traveling, and so on. In recent years, the term "halal" has evolved in meaning to encompass a range of hygienic and high-quality food products, meat products, cosmetics, personal care products, leather goods, and food ingredients. Though halal foods were originally intended for Muslims, people of all religions and ethnic backgrounds are showing an interest in them today, as they are recognized for their safety and ethical qualities. Halal is not limited to food only but include non-food things as well like logistic services (supply chain services) for cosmetics and personal care, pharmaceuticals, Health, cloth besides this Islamic financing, takaful services, halal tourism, including the whole life style. Halal is a value proposition that exists within key elements of the supply chain of the intersecting industry sectors.
